

ABSTRACT

A method of manufacturing a wiring board is provided. The method includes performing a plating process to a land, in a condition that a resist film having an opening for exposing at least the center of the land is formed on a substrate with wires having the land formed thereon, so that a first portion of an edge of the opening is disposed on the substrate and a second portion of the edge is disposed on the land.